

This is the current row that the user is knitting. Below it is the previous row. Above it are the next rows.

Save your current spot in your knitting

The row highlight will move up and automatically return to the pattern's first row for a fresh repeat of the pattern. In the event that a user needs to back up a row, the previous button will regress the row highlight.

This is where the user will select their pattern.

This floating button will lead the user to the pattern building activity.

